

Travel & Expense Policy

Flight bookings & meal allowances

Purpose & Scope

This policy governs how employees book business travel and claim travel-related expenses, ensuring consistent, cost-effective practices across the company. It applies to all employees undertaking approved business travel, and works alongside standard expense reporting procedures administered by Finance.

Definitions

Per Diem	The maximum daily meal allowance an employee may claim for a given travel day, without itemized justification below the receipt threshold.
Concur	Acme Corp's designated online booking tool for business travel.
Client Entertainment	Pre-approved dining or hospitality directly involving a client, eligible for alcohol reimbursement where authorized.
Sign-off	Written approval required from a department Vice President before certain bookings, such as Business Class travel, can be made.

Roles & Responsibilities

Role	Responsibility
Employee	Book travel through approved channels, keep receipts, and submit expense claims promptly.
Department Vice President	Provide written sign-off for Business Class bookings that meet policy criteria.
Finance Team	Review and process expense claims, and handle exception requests raised before travel.
Travel Agency / Concur Admin	Maintain approved booking channels and negotiated corporate rates.

1. Flight Bookings & Travel Agency

All business travel flights must be booked through the company's designated online booking tool, Concur, or via our authorized travel agency. Booking outside these channels is not permitted, as it removes visibility from Finance and limits the company's ability to apply negotiated corporate rates.

Domestic flights must be booked in Economy Class. This standard keeps domestic travel costs predictable and consistent across departments.

- Business Class bookings are only permitted for international flights exceeding 6 hours in duration.
- Business Class bookings require prior written sign-off from the department Vice President before the ticket is purchased.
- Any exception request outside these parameters should be raised with Finance before booking, not after travel has occurred.

2. Daily Meal Allowances (Per Diem)

Acme Corp allows a maximum daily meal per diem of $75 for domestic business travel and $100 for international business travel. These limits are intended to cover reasonable meal costs across a full travel day, including breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

- Employees must submit itemized receipts for all meals exceeding $25 in value.
- Alcohol expenses are not eligible for reimbursement unless associated with a pre-approved client entertainment event.
- Per diem claims should be submitted promptly after the trip through the standard expense reporting process to avoid delays in reimbursement.

■ Reimbursement Note

Claims submitted without itemized receipts for qualifying meals (over $25) may be rejected or delayed during expense review. Keep all receipts until the claim is fully processed.

Standard Procedure — Booking International Business Class Travel

- 1 Confirm the flight duration exceeds 6 hours and the trip is international.
- 2 Draft a brief justification for the booking, including dates and route.
- 3 Request written sign-off from the department Vice President before booking.
- 4 Once approved, book the ticket through Concur or the authorized travel agency.
- 5 Retain the VP approval alongside the booking confirmation for expense reporting.

Frequently Asked Questions

Can I book a flight directly with an airline if it's cheaper?

No. All flights must go through Concur or the authorized travel agency, regardless of price comparisons, to maintain visibility and negotiated rates.

What if my international flight is just under 6 hours?

It would not meet the Business Class eligibility threshold; Economy Class would apply unless an exception is separately approved.

Do I need a receipt for a $20 lunch?

Itemized receipts are only required for meals exceeding $25, though keeping all receipts is good practice.

Can I expense drinks at a client dinner?

Only if the dinner is a pre-approved client entertainment event; otherwise alcohol is not reimbursable.

Non-Compliance & Enforcement

Travel bookings made outside approved channels, or Business Class bookings made without prior VP sign-off, may not be reimbursed. Expense claims lacking required receipts may be rejected or delayed. Repeated non-compliance will be reviewed by Finance in coordination with the employee's manager.

Example Scenarios

Scenario: Domestic conference trip

An employee books a round-trip domestic flight to a conference through Concur in Economy Class, and keeps daily meal spend within the $75 domestic per diem, submitting itemized receipts for two dinners that exceeded $25.

Scenario: Long-haul international trip

An employee's international flight is scheduled at 8 hours in duration. Because it exceeds the 6-hour threshold, they request written sign-off from their department Vice President before booking a Business Class ticket through the authorized travel agency.

Scenario: Client dinner with wine

An employee hosts a pre-approved client dinner that includes wine. Because the event was approved in advance as client entertainment, the alcohol expense is eligible for reimbursement alongside the itemized meal receipt.
